PLEASED BY SUPPORT

Only Through His Party Will Government Be Restored to People, Says Visitor.

Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, a candidate for United States Senator, and G. D. Berry of St. Joseph, a member of the Democratic State Committee, were in Maryville this afternoon in the interest of Mr. Hay's candidacy.

The Northwest Missouri State Teachers College here has been placed on the same rating as the best Teachers schools in the United States.

Word was received here today at the Teachers College that all of the Missouri State Teachers Colleges had been listed in class A by the American Association of Teachers College. The Northwest Missouri State Teachers College here is one of the five institutions in Missouri which is maintained by the State.

The information concerning this rating was sent in a telegram by Uel W. Lamkin, president of the State Teachers College, from Boston, Mass., where he is attending a meeting of the National Education Association and he and Homer T. Phillips of the College faculty are representing the institution at a meeting of the American Association of Teachers Colleges.

Mr. Lamkin's telegram read: "All Missouri Teachers Colleges listed in class A by American Association of Teachers Colleges—is highest classification given."

This rating was made following a survey of the local institution immediately following the holiday season.

It was not known at the Teachers College today whether the Northwest Missouri Teachers College had been continued on the class A list, raised in rating or if it ever had been given any rating by the Association heretofore.

The other teachers colleges in the state maintained by the State are located at Kirksville, Warrensburg, Springfield and Cape Girardeau.

GEORGE AS A "DARK HORSE"

FRIENDS MAKE CAMPAIGN FOR SOUTHERN SENATOR.

KNOWN AS ACTIVE DRY

Georgia Senator Has Made Strong Impression at Washington.—Expect He Might Be Compromise Candidate.

By Thomas L. Stokes
United Press Staff Correspondent
Copyright, 1928, by United Press

Washington, Feb. 24.—Friends of Senator George of Georgia are making an active campaign in his behalf of stir up sentiment for him among southern leaders with the idea of putting him forward at the Democratic convention as a compromise presidential candidate if the deadlock they expect materializes.

George will enter the convention with his own state delegation. Other southern states likewise will have their "favorite son" candidates, a piece of strategy worked out here at the Democratic National Committee meeting to combat the Al Smith movement.

If these states muster sufficient strength, with scattered support they expect elsewhere to stop the Smith trend, they must have a candidate of their own to put forward. The whole thought now of southern leaders is turned toward a "second-choice" candidate. It is the aim of George's friends to have him as the "second-choice candidate."

In this campaign, they must cope with the sentiment for other southern "favorite sons" who are ambitious for the nomination and who will go to the convention with their delegations in line for them, as well as a sentiment for such other candidates for "second choice" as Senator Reed, Missouri, and Governor Ritchie of Maryland.

Some of the Georgia congressional delegation are for Reed as a "second choice" candidate, but if it were found that George had a strong following as a compromise candidate, they would be for George.

George is a dry and has made a strong impression here by his senatorial activities.

His dryness raises another factor that his friends must consider in their campaign. If the Smith movement is checked, those delegates who are for the New York Governor are expected to demand that another "wet" be selected, and they will have Reed and Ritchie to put forward as a compromise. It is conceivable that a compromise of a dry presidential candidate and a wet vice-presidential candidate might be worked out.

The movement in the south for Reed as a "second choice" hinges about the wet and dry compromise they see necessary if Smith is checked.

$25,000 Taken From Wellston Trust Co.

Wellston, Mo., Feb. 24.—Four bandits believed to have hidden in the Wellston Trust Company during the night held up the bank at opening time today and escaped with between $25,000 and $30,000 in cash after kidnaping the driver of a bank service car.

As employes entered the bank this morning, the bandit quartet held each one of them up, gathered up a consignment of cash, and escaped by commandering the service car, the driver of which they kidnaped.

Early estimates of the loot placed the figure at more than $25,000.

GUNS BLAZE AS THEY ROB

BANDIT GANG HOLDS UP CITY BANK OF KANSAS CITY.

ESCAPE WITH $15,000

Officers and Customers Forced to the Floor—May Be Same Gang as in Previous Robbery.

BANKERS FORM ALLIANCE TO CHECK BANDITRY.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 24. — Bankers of Kansas City formed an alliance today in an effort to curb bank banditry, announcing that armed guards would be placed in all down town banks with orders to shoot to kill if any person produces a revolver in bank lobbies.

Several banks already have armed guards but these will be reinforced by the addition of one or more, it was said. W. B. Planck, president of the Gate City National Bank, said he had given instructions to his guards to shoot to kill.

Formation of the Bankers' alliance followed the robbery today of the City Bank, in which approximately $15,000 was taken, and the robbery of the Twelfth Street Bank several weeks ago.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 24.—A bank robbery was perpetrated here today when, with guns blazing, five or six members of a bandit gang entered the City Bank and robbed it of an amount estimated at between $15,000 and $18,000.

The robbers escaped in a touring car which was parked at the bank's entrance.

The bandits entered the bank shortly after 9 a. m. Piles of currency and silver had just been brought out from the vaults and placed on the counters for the opening of the day's business.

A half dozen customers crouched in a corner when the bandits entered, shouting for everyone to throw up their hands. The robbers punctuated their commands with frequent shots into the ceiling.

Policeman Unaware.

A policeman on the corner was unaware of the robbery until it was over. Bank officers and customers were forced to lie on the floor when the bandits made their getaway.

R. C. Kemper, president of the bank, is the son of W. T. Kemper, national Democratic committeeman from Missouri and president of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad.

The City Bank is situated at Eighteenth and Grand avenue, on a main thoroughfare running into the heart of the downtown section. The bank is a new structure and is directly across the street from the Kansas City Star.

Besides the customers in the lobby, forty employes were behind the cages and twenty persons were at work on the mezzanine floor of the bank.

Enter With Yells.

The bandits entered the bank yelling and cursing. Their first act was to fire their weapons at random, startling everyone in the bank. Then, under the leadership of their commander, they hurled money bags and currency through the cages onto the floor.

The money was hurriedly picked up and carried to the waiting automobile. The robbery took less than five minutes.

Customers in the bank and pedestrians who witnessed the robbery told different stories about the number of men comprising the bandit gang. Some said there were at least a dozen, while other were of the opinion there were only five or six.

One pedestrian stated the bandit car parked at the curb contained a machine gun. This led police to believe the gang was the same which several weeks ago robbed the Twelth Street Bank. During this robbery a machine gun was trained on the bank's main entrance while the robbers inside looted the place.

Shots Fired Into Air.

Upon entering the City Bank this morning, the bandit leader yelled "this is a robbery, everybody put up your hands." The chorus was taken up by other members of the gang, who also fired their revolvers into the air.

R. Crosby Kemper, president, was ordered to lie face downward on the floor. He was slow to comply with the command to lie down and the bandit leader fired two shots at him, narrowly missing his mark.

The robbery was committed at an hour when hundreds of pedestrians and

OIL TANGLE STRAIGHTENS

GOVERNMENT SPEEDS RETRIBUTIVE ACTION.

NOT COMPLETED YET

Senate Committee to Continue Its Probe Tomorrow.— Stewart Evades Jail by Appeal.

By United Press.

The government has redoubled its pace in prosecution of the Teapot Dome oil "scandal" and its outgrowths.

Harry F. Sinclair, who leased Teapot Dome from Secretary of Interior Fall in 1922 and later paid him $233,000 in Liberty bond profits of the mysterious Continental Trading Company, was sentenced with three others on Monday for shadowing Fall-Sinclair trial jurors.

Yesterday a District of Columbia court affirmed the Senate's right to arrest Robert W. Stewart, Indiana oil chief, for refusing to tell all he knew of the Continental deal. Stewart appealed, but if he loses he must testify or face an indefinite term in jail.

Meanwhile the Senate Teapot Dome committee traced $750,000 more of the Continental's bond profits, this time to Harry M. Blackmer, Teapot witness hiding in Paris. Blackmer's son will be questioned tomorrow, and a week from tomorrow Blackmer's attorney must tell why he should not be held in contempt for refusing to respond to a subpoena.

U. S. Attorney Peyton Gordon announced also that he will begin next week criminal contempt proceedings against Edward J. Kidwell, Fall-Sinclair trial juror who allegedly boasted he expected to profit by Sinclair's acquittal. Burns agents who shadowed the jurors will be acted against similarly, Gordon said.

To Develop New Phase.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Officials of the Western Oil Field corporation of Denver will be called to develop a new phase of the Senate oil inquiry, Chairman Nye of the Teapot Dome committee announced today.

The committee has discovered, Nye said, that the Denver company had a contract with the mysterious Continental company for sale of crude petroleum. The committee has no evidence that the company was involved in the strange bond deal of 1921, but desires to ascertain facts about the contract, Nye said.

Nye also announced that if the Senate contempt case of Col. Robert Stewart of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was not settled before Congress adjourned in June, he would propose a resolution allowing arrest of Stewart during the summer recess should the case be decided in favor of the Senate.

This step was contemplated, Nye said, to avoid delay in Stewart's case until the December congressional session.

Put Off Perhaps Two Years.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Col. Robert W. Stewart, Standard Oil chief, has put off the Senate's questions about the "Continental deal" by perhaps as much as two years by an appeal, but at the same time has opened the Sen

HOOVER GIVES A FLOOD PLAN

SUGGESTS COMMISSION TO WORK OUT FINANCIAL BASIS.

NO DELAY, HOWEVER

Secretary, Answering Question of Political Foes, Suggests Work Start at Once.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover presented to the Senate interstate commerce committee today a compromise flood control financing scheme favored by President Coolidge.

Thus he avoided the embarrassing position in which his political opponents had hoped to place him—either supporting or opposing the President's old plan of having states pay 20 per cent of control costs.

The plan suggested by the President calls for a federal commission to determine within a year how much the various flood-ridden states can pay and when. Meantime, Hoover said, Congress should authorize construction of control works, delay in which would be a "calamity."

No Animosity Shown.

The Secretary was questioned fifty minutes by committee members, including Senators Willis and Hawes, who had insisted on his testifying. Chairman Jones several times put a stop to certain lines of questioning, and the whole hearing passed without open display of animosities.

After the session, Willis declined to comment on Hoover's testimony, saying: "That would not be nice."

Jones announced later that the committee would meet Monday to begin framing a bill. By that time it is expected Secretary of War Davis and Major General Jadwin, chief of army engineers, will have perfected the administration compromise measure on which they have been working several days.

Submitted to House.

The administration's compromise bill drafted by General Jadwin was submitted to the House today through Representative Kopp, Republican, Iowa, member of the House flood control committee.

The measure provides that the Secretary of War, on recommendation of the chief of engineers, may waive or agree to a postponement of, or compliance with, any of the conditions in specific cases. This would permit deferred local contributions.

The measure carries a total of $260,960,000 which is 80 per cent of the original appropriation proposed by Jadwin. The other 20 per cent was for local contributions.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover recommend a compromise flood control plan when he testified today before the Senate commerce committee.

He suggested that federal commission be appointed to work out in a year's time the financial capacity of the stricken Mississippi Valley districts to meet obligations for helping the federal government control works.

He said that, in the meantime, Congress could go ahead and appropriate money for the work and that construction of spillways and safety devices could be begun.

Paints Picture of Need.

At the outset he had declined to discuss engineering features of the various flood control plans; and had painted for the committee a distressing picture of the human want caused by the floods with its consequent economic reaction on the whole nation.

The compromise plan was regarded as a sort of check-mate to political opponents who had foreseen that the secretary, as Republican presidential possibility, might trip on the question of state contributions for flood control. They had foreseen he might antagonize the administration by favoring complete federal payment of costs; or alienate possible southern votes by favoring partial state contributions.

Hoover's compromise plan was offered in answer to a question of Senator Hawes, Democrat, Missouri, as to whether he favored the costs. Hawes told Hoover the states already had paid out more than $100,000,000 and

Three New Motor Speed Records Set

Britain Keeps Leadership, but American Drivers Smash Marks for Stock Cars.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 24.—Three new motor car speed records—one of which found a driver hurling his machine over the course at almost three and a half miles a minute—today were entered on the official records.

The speed tests ended yesterday and found England in command of the greatest motor car speed through the achievement of Captain Malcolm Campbell.

America tried valiantly to wrest the speed record from Campbell but the effort ended with the chief entry, the Stutz Blackhawk, wrecked and its driver, Frank Lockhart, in the hospital.

But American drivers did win stock car records.

The official record for the week shows:

Special built cars—206.95602 miles an hour, by Captain Malcolm Campbell in a Napier Bluebird.

Semi-stock cars—106.52463 miles an hour by Gil Anderson in a Stutz Blackhawk.

Three accidents marred the record breaking performances. The major one was when Lockhart catapulted into the sea. Ray Keech, driving the Big Triplex of J. M. White, was badly burned when a gas line broke and Wilbur Shaw, driving a Whippet, had to turn his car into the sea yesterday after flames broke out.

14 Men Trapped by Arkansas Mine Blast

Little Hope for Entombed Miners, Rescue Workers Say.—111 Workers Escape.

Jenny Lind, Ark., Feb. 24.—Three bodies of thirteen miners trapped in a gas explosion at the No. 3 mine of the Mama Mine Company here were removed this afternoon.

Practically all hope was abandoned for the ten men known to be still in the wrecked shaft.

Miss Davison Tells About Visit

Fort Smith, Ark., Feb. 24.—Between fifteen and eighteen miners were trapped in the Mamma Mine Company's No. 3 shaft at Jenny Lind, eight miles south of here, in an explosion today. One hundred miners escaped.

Survivors said they believed there was no hope for the men caught in the blast. There were about 125 men at work in three joining shafts at the time of the explosion, company officials said.

Rescue crews began work immediately to remove the debris in the shaft in an effort to reach the trapped men.

Jenny Lind, Ark., Feb. 24.—Fate of fourteen miners reported trapped in a blast at the Mamma Mine Company's Shaft No. 3 here today remained undetermined early this afternoon.

Rescue workers expressed the belief that all the entombed men had been killed in the blast. One hundred and eleven fellow workers in adjoining shafts escaped.

The blast, believed caused by gas, roared through the shaft, shaking down the timbers and cutting off any possible escape of the No. 3 crew, officials said. The explosion occurred at 8 a. m.

Five hours later rescue crews had been unable to penetrate into the wrecked pocket holding either bodies or living men.

ate's way to imprison him unlimitedly if his appeal fails and he persists in refusing to testify.

Senate legal authorities explained today that if and when his appeals from the adverse habeas corpus decision of yesterday fail, the oil king can be imprisoned indefinitely as a Senate coercive measure provided he continues to defy questioners.

This is in addition to the punitive action now pending before the grand jury for contempt of the Senate, for which, if convicted, Stewart can be given a prison term. Harry F. Sinclair is now free on bond from two such sentences, one for three months for Senate contempt, and one for six months for contempt of court in jury-shadowing.

No "Double Jeopardy."

Special Oil Prosecutor Owen J. Roberts and other legal authorities have advised Senate leaders that no "double jeopardy" of Stewart's liberty is involved in such actions, although both arose from his refusal to tell the Senate Teapot Dome committee, what he knew about the disposal of the Continental Trading Company's $3,080,000 in Liberty bond profits.

The grand jury action, now expected to result in a Senate contempt indictment next Monday, is "punitive" while the Senate action seeking to obtain answers to the same questions is "coercive," Roberts explained.

The punitive power has been upheld many times, and Senate leaders expect another affirmation by the District of Columbia court of appeals and the U. S. supreme court in the Sinclair contempt case, and in the Stewart contempt case if the Standard of Indiana executive is convicted and appeals.

Entire Cast Stars in Play, "Dulcy," Presented at College

Playing the leading role in the three-act comedy, "Duley," at the State Teachers College auditorium last night, Helen Fouts blundered her way through to win the approval and admiration of the audience. Her "blundering" was prescribed by the co-authors of the play, George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, and, with the aid of an unusually capable supporting cast, she gave an admirable interpretation of the awkward part that was Dulcinea's.

The play was a remarkable success and credit goes to the entire cast, with a large share to the instructor of the Dramatics Club, Miss Gladys Criswell, and her helpers and assistants, the producing staff.

Duley was a very, very ambitious young wife. This commendable trait of character, however, was more or less off-set by her "efficient blundering," which ruined a week-end party at her home near New York. This party itself was a blunderous move on the part of the ambitious heroine, in that her selection of guests was lacking in good sound judgment. Her attempting to increase the amount of her husband's share of a big corporation's dividends by entertaining the "chief" was a tactless move, and it seemed as if every other move she made were a mistake.

Gordon Smith, the husband, was well played by Truman Nickerson. His business associate, C. Roger Forbes, New York pearl king, was played by Chilton Ross. With his family, Mrs. Forbes, played by Vada Cliser, and Angela, his daughter, played by Hildred Fitz, he was one of the week-end guests in the home of Duley and Gordon.

Throughout two acts this little "good will" mission of Duley's was a perfect failure. The indisposed Mr. Forbes, sarcastically grouchy, seemed to be the target of all the unhappy situations developing as the party proceeded. Chilton Ross was at his best in the portrayal of this naturally disagreeable character, and his ugly sarcasms were an enjoyable part of the play.

The motely group of guests further included Schuyler Van Dyck, played by Vernon Barrett, who in the second act was revealed to be the sorry victim of a peculiar halucination, causing Gordon no end of trouble in his business relations with Mr. Forbes; Vincent Leach, self-styled scenarist, played by Harold Braun; and the uninvited visitor, Tom Sterrett, advertising manager for Roger Forbes, played by Kenneth Evans.

The love plot of the drama was an intriguing rivalry between the romantic scenarist, the advertising man, and Miss Duley's brother, William Parker, a part taken by Fay Woodson Null, for the hand of Forbes' beautiful daughter, Angela. This three-cornered affair resulted in an elopment involving Parker, Leach, and Angela. The distracted parents, and especially Mr. Forbes, placing the blame on poor Duley, who was actually instrumental in promoting the elopement of Leach and Forbes' daughter, became more disgruntled. Leach, obnoxious to the elder Forbes, was supposed to be the man of the elopement, a misapprehension which was only bared in the final scene and William was found to be the correct bridegroom by some clever managing on his part. William was acceptable to Mr. Forbes.

Meanwhile, Duley's efforts at entertainment, had proved in vain. Forbes and Gordon became estranged and this complication was semi-climaxed with the announcement of the mentally deficient person, Van Dyck, that he would finance a mammoth undertaking to compete with Forbes in the pearl field. Gordon, overjoyed, but unsuspecting, accepted and closed his relations with Forbes, only to be startlingly informed that his proposed backer is the victim of a type of insanity which caused him to desire to finance such undertakings without any actual ability to do so. Blair Patterson, a cousin of "Van Dyck," played by Homer Ogden, came to the suburban home to take the "lunatic" away. Gordon believed his future ruined when Duley, the little blunderer that was the very instrument of all the travail of the entire group, climaxed the entire affair with her final crowning blunder, which twisted the trend of things to a successful ending and all the finer details were smoothed out into a perfect climax, even to the ultimate appeasing of the indisposed C. Roger Forbes.

The butler, figuring in a pearl theft and self-guided return, was played by Wiley Poleson in a pleasing manner.

Individual treatment cannot be given but blanket praise is due the entire cast and every one connected with the production. Probably the outstanding characters, besides the two or three principals, were Vernon Barrett, playing with some skill the difficult part assigned him, Chilton Ross, well portraying the "old man" role, and Hildred Fitz, romantically taking her "other girl's part.

The producing staff:
Director, Gladys Criswell.
Assistant director, Mary Goodpasture.
Stage manager, Hesterlynn Shipps.
Property committee, Katherine Gray, Lottie Masters, Illene Wethered.
Electrician, Russell McCoy.

suggested it was unreasonable to expect them to pay more now.

The Statement.

Hoover's statement before the committee follows:

"I am glad to have the opportunity to present to the committee my views as to the urgency of legislation for the control of Mississippi floods.

"I believe the failure of action at this session of congress would be a calamity not alone to the people in the flood territory but to the country as a whole; and it is indeed urgent that legislation should be completed at the earliest moment that it can be accomplished with proper deliberation.

"Engineering and the methods, of course, lie wholly within the War Department and outside the functions of the Department of Commerce. I can, however, speak upon the necessity of legislation from both a human and economic point of view.

"I had the honor to be chosen by President Coolidge to organize and direct the relief activities during the recent flood. No man could occupy that responsibility and have witnessed its scenes without being deeply moved to the urgent human need of preventive measures.

Flood Unprecedented.

"I need not recount to you the unprecedented character of the flood. Some 750,000 of our people were compelled to flee from their homes in jeopardy of their lives. The damage to their crops, farms and villages amounted to hundreds of millions of dollars. It was only by the extraordinary cooperation and initiative of the people of the South with the help of the Red Cross and our federal agencies that an enormous loss of life was prevented. We witnessed the unprecedented necessity of removing several hundred thousand people to concentration camps, providing them with the necessities of life, safeguarding their health and rehabilitating them in their homes.

"It would seem to me, therefore, that the President's recent suggestion that a commission should be set up that would study all these factors and make its recommendation to Congress a year hence would be an admirable way by which to determine both the methods and do full justice in the situation.

Need Cause No Delay.

"It does not seem to me that such a plan need cause any delay, for the works can be authorized and the necessary appropriations made so that the work can go forward and in the meantime such a commission could prepare considered recommendations to Congress for action in this particular."

His statement of Mr. Coolidge's support of the commission plan was taken generally as further checkmate to any who might have anticipated political capital for themselves from Hoover's testimony.

Has the Hog Feed Question Got You Guessing ?

You Can Feed Hogs at a Profit Under Present Market Conditions If You Feed Correctly

By SAM H. RAY

EVERYONE KNOWS that to make the most money feeding hogs a large part of the ration must be composed of grains grown on your own farm. You can be assured that any hog feed not permitting you to feed your own grains greatly increases your feeding costs. Even baby pigs to be grown economically must be fed so that corn or similar farm grown grains is a large part of the ration. All agricultural colleges verify this statement. Don't let anyone tell you differently.

DON'T JUDGE a feed by the amount pigs and hogs consume. The feeds the hogs like best are not necessarily the ones which do your pocketbook the most good. If a hog feed is properly prepared and balanced and rich enough, they will not eat too much. It should make the hog want more grain. If a feed is properly balanced you can feed it in a self feeder. This is the real test of a commercial feed. Success Brand Concentrate is properly balanced. It is one of the few feeds on the market which can be fed successfully in self-feeders. Try feeding it this way. You will find that hogs eat about the same amount as they do of Tankage.

ANOTHER THING: Don't be fooled by the high protein content of some feeds. Protein is not always digestible. Certain classes of beans for instance, even though high in Protein must be boiled in brine to make them digestible. Concentrate is high in Protein. It is composed only of the easily digestible proteins, minerals, etc., While it is palatable, hogs do not need a lot of it to get desired results. Remember in feeding hogs that pork is generally the best way to market your corn crop. Success Concentrate is manufactured with this is mind. It supplies the ingredients missing in corn.

WE SUGGEST you keep in mind the following factors when buying a hog feed:

1. Don't buy a feed containing corn, oats or any other easily grown farm grain. It is generally safer to keep away from feeds containing by-products of these grains.

2. Remember that quite generally something is economically wrong with feeds which can be fed alone. Such feeds may be low in protein or low in digestible protein. As a general rule hogs can't eat a high protein feed straight without getting "off feed". If they can eat it straight, it is a good sign that the protein is not being digested. You can't feed Concentrate straight. It is too rich.

3. Beware of feeds which are high in fibre. Fibre is not a very digestible product and sometimes it may prevent the easy digestion of the proteins, minerals, etc.

4. Do not buy a hog feed which does not contain animal as well as vegetable proteins. Tankage and buttermilk are two well known animal proteins. Almost every authority in the country will tell you that these two feeds are highly essential in economical pork production. Concentrate contains enough of these two feeds to properly balance the ration. Also it contains the proper amount of the concentrated vegetable proteins.

5. Buy a feed that you can feed in a self feeder. Slopping is a lot of work and even with baby pigs does not pay. Feed Concentrate in a self-feeder by itself. Feed all the corn and water they will consume. Let the hogs do the work. You will get results.

6. Be certain the feed you buy is made by a company with practical as well as scientific experience in hog feeding problems. Don't buy a feed which is made simply to get rid of some cheap by-product.

7. Try Concentrate along with other commercial hog feeds. We believe that after you have tried concentrate you will say it is better than Tankage. A lot of successful Feeders have found this true.

As a trio composed of Miss Mae Corwin, Mrs. A. F. Harvey and Mrs. D. J. Thomas, sang "Miss Nancy's Gown", by Chadwick, Mrs. Silas M. Stanley appeared in tableau dressed as a colonial maiden. As an encore the trio sang "Elusive Love," by Robinson. They were accompanied by Mrs. William Van Cleve.

A toast was given Mrs. Hart who was introduced by Mrs. Joseph Jackson. Mrs. George Colbert presided during the program, and as one feature gave the history of "Yankee Doodle." The entire group joined in singing "Yankee Doodle" and "Dixie." Mrs. Thomas and Miss Corwin led the group singing. Mrs. Harvey accompanied the singing on the piano.

Mrs. Hart was delighted with the program of patriotic airs and asked that this part of the program be incorporated in the program at the state conference in St. Louis in October.

GRAHAM HAS SCOUT TROOP

29 BOYS IN TENTATIVE ORGANIZATION.

WILL MEET TONIGHT

Rev. Ralph Hicks Chosen Scoutmaster With Albert Sipes and Campbell Weston Assistants.

A newly organized Boy Scout troop at Graham will hold its first meeting tonight.

H. Max Nusser, assistant Scout executive of the St. Joseph area, in charge of field work, was in Graham Tuesday to promote the organization of a troop there. He visited the school and talked to the boys in the various rooms in the morning. In the afternoon Superintendent Harry Haun excused the boys from their class work while a temporary organization was being effected.

The permanent organization will not take place until after the boys have passed their "tenderfoot" examinations, which will be in about three weeks.

Twenty-nine boys were lined up for membership, enough for three full patrols and one skeleton patrol. The Rev. Ralph Hicks, new pastor of the Graham M. E. Church, who has spent three years in Y. M. C. A. work in Kansas City, was chosen scoutmaster. His assistants are Albert Sipes and Campbell Weston.

The patrols will meet each Friday night at the various homes of members and the troop will hold its meetings in the American Legion rooms. The Legion is sponsoring the Scout movement and a Scout committee is composed of Walter Bussell, chairman, Dr. E. L. Morgan and Louis Lawson.

Each Boy Scout is eligible to a week at Camp Brinton, fifteen miles southeast of St. Joseph, during the summer, where major Scout work will be taught and swimming, archery, cycling, horseback riding and other sports will be engaged in. The total cost for a week at the camp is $5.00. If the boys will earn the money to pay their expenses for a week at the camp the American Legion will take care of their transportation there and return.

Tonight's meeting will be attended by the Rev. J. V. Hawk, scoutmaster at Skidmore, and one or more of the Skidmore Scouts, who will explain the work to the prospective "tenderfeet."

It is the purpose of the Scout officials of the St. Joseph district to organize troops in other towns of Nodaway county whenever possible.

Dr. Robison to Be at Pickering Sunday

Dr. E. L. Robison, district superintendent of the M. E. Church at St. Joseph, will be in charge of the 11 o'clock services Sunday at the Pickering M. E. Church.

Sunday school will be held at 10 o'clock. There will be no evening services at the M. E. Church, as union services will be held in the Christian Church there.

Rev. E. B. Thompson Dies in St. Joseph

Former District Superintendent Well Known Among Methodists in This County.

The Rev. Ernest B. Mr. Thompson was stricken in his motor car while near his home.

Mr. Thompson was about 54 years old. He was born in Birmingham, England, and came to this country with his parents when he was 11 years old. The family settled in Mercer County, Missouri.

Mr. Thompson was married to Mrs. Hilda Tedford on Dec. 31, 1925. She survives him. His first wife, Mrs. Stella Thompson, died several years ago. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, Marionville, Mo; a daughter, Mrs. Lowell Davis, Marceline, Mo.; two sons, the Rev. Joseph Thompson, Bethany, Mo., and Ernest Thompson, Cameron, Mo.; two step-daughters Miss Esther Tedford and Mrs. George White; a stepson, William Tedford, all of St. Joseph, and two brothers, Joseph and Elmer Thompson, Lucerne, Mo.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the First M. E. Church in St. Joseph tomorrow afternoon. Dr. E. L. Robison, district superintendent, will officiate. Burial will be in Mount Auburn cemetery in that city.

Dr. C. C. Russell of Slater, Mo., was here this week visiting his brother, J. J. Russell, and family.

What Nodaway County Churches Are Doing

The Ruler Who Swallowed His Pride

Comment on the Uniform International Series for February 26, 1928. Read Mark 5.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

In one of the handsomest homes in Capernium lived Jarius, president of the synagog. It was a happy home and Jarius was a good man to his family. He was a Pharisee and a strict religionist, orthodox and stern. His family consisted of a beautiful wife and one little daughter. The little girl 12 years old, was the center of the life of that home. She had every care, she was given every luxury, she was happy and she loved her daddy.

Many times this little family group talked about the things which were happening about them. One day the little girl came home from among her playmates and began to ask questions. Her companions had told her about a man called Jesus and some wonderful things he had done. She was all excited for that day her little friends had told her that this strange man had brought to life the son of a widow who lived at Nain. "Can a man bring anybody who is dead to life?" asked the little girl.

Her father explained to her that the story was probably false and that the man Jesus was just a disturber and ought to be arrested. He, so Jarius said, was trying to tear down the church and ruin the high priests and the elders. He criticised them severely and no doubt would be exposed and run out of the country. I am sure that this was not the only time Jesus was discussed in that home when the little girl was not present. Jairus told his wife about the crowds which followed this man, about the things he was reported to have done and the gossip among their friends.

Then came sickness to that home. The little girl was unable to leave her bed. The father and mother were frantic. They called in the doctors and spent their money freely. The child grew weaker and hope was gone. The mother remembered the story of the son of the widow of Nain and begged Jarius to see this man and ask his help. Jarius would not. He is a fraud, the ruler said. The next day there was hardly life left to the little girl. Jarius swallowed his pride. He would do anything for the little daughter. He heard that Jesus was that day not far away and went to him. He prostrated himself and begged the Master for help.

It would have been perfectly natural for Jesus to have refused. He could have told Jarius that he had all he could do taking care of his own friends and he could have inquired why he, the man whom Jarius and all his kind had abused and persecuted and whom they wanted to kill should concern himself about the daughter of an enemy. Jesus did nothing of the kind. He told Jarius that he would go with him to the home and see what could be done.

The great man hoped. He was impatient. His heart was torn and when when in the crowds by the way a poor woman who had been an invalid for thirty years touched the garment Jesus wore and stopped the procession while Jesus told her to go in peace, Jarius was trembling with impatience. I imagine he was a little contemptuous about the woman when affairs much more mighty hung on the balance.

Then came servants who met the procession and told Jarius that his daughter was dead. The man's faith in Jesus was not very strong and now it died. He began to be bitter and say that if this man had not stopped on account of a woman he might have been in time. But Jesus remained calm and serene. He did not hasten his steps but he continued his journey. Arriving at the home of Jarius he entered and to the child lying on a rich couch without sign of life, he said, "Little girl, get up."

I wish I could write a sequel to this story and tell you what happened to Jarius afterward. I wonder if he became a Christian as I believe did Nicodemus, another rich man and ruler among the Pharisees. I wonder if he lost his place as president of the synagog or if he remained a Pharisee and saw Jesus crucified. I am not wondering about the little girl or about her mother. I am sure that they always loved the gentle man who said, "Little girl, get up." I am sure that they became Christians, but Jarius, the proud ruler, who swallowed his pride to take a last forlorn chance to save his daughter, did he throw overboard the beliefs and the teachings of a lifetime, a good place of power and influence and join the dsciples of Jesus? I do not know. What would you have done?

This incident in the life of Jesus is given to us through the sayings or the writings of Peter who was present. It is not so important to know what happened afterward to Jarius or his family, neither is it especially important that Jesus brought life to the little girl. I get this great idea from the story. Jesus held no grudge, he never punished or hated men who differed with him. He served an enemy when he could. He lived his own teachings for he said "Love your enemies."

It has been a puzzle to me, this loving of enemies. I can not love one who attacks the things most sacred to me, who threatens my life, who would ruin me if he could. I believe though that if I found such a one in desperate circumstances, helpless and wretched, I would be willing to help him if I could. I do not think I can ever forget the awful evil things which men do, but I pray for the power to forgive. We can not forget, we are not made that way, but if the daughter of Jairus can be saved from the crushing rush of an automobile I would like to be the one to save her.

In a life which has brought me to know men in high places and men so low that they seem hopeless, I have found this sentiment held up as a virtue "He was always loyal to his friends." I have heard that sentence said at a funeral when nothing else could have been said in praise. Among men of high and low degree this is held to be a redeeming virtue and we all sympathize with that. We despise the ungrateful man, the man who treads beneath his feet the friends who have helped him.

This virtue will not take any man to heaven. This virtue is the excuse for all our dirty politics. In the days when Jesus and Jairus lived and when their lives crossed so dramatically, no man had ever taught finer virtue than this. No man among the Jews who had God's word as revealed in the Old Testament, ever taught forgiveness of enemies. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, was a part of religion.

Jesus gave us a better and a finer direction for life. He healed the daughter of his enemy. He lived according to the principles he taught.

To the woman healed at the touch of his garment he said go in peace. In all the Semetic languages peace means prosperity, happiness, welfare, good fortune and a serene mind.

Peace can not exist with hate and a spirit of vengeance. Because a man is not your friend has nothing to do with the case.

OTHER MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS.

Lesson Text.—Mark 5:22-27, 32-36, 41, 42. Read 5:22-43.

22. And there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and seeing him, he falleth at his feet,

23. and beseecheth him much, saying, My little daughter is at the point of death; I pray thee, that thou come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be made whole, and live.

24. And he went with him; and a great multitude followed him, and they thronged him.

25. And a woman, who had an issue of blood twelve years,

26. and had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse,

27. having heard of the things concerning Jesus, came in the crowd behind and touched his garment.

32. And he looked around about to see her that had done this thing.

33. But the woman fearing and trembling, knowing what had been done to her, came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth.

34. And he said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague.

35. While he yet spake, they come from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying, Thy daughter is dead; why troublest thou the Teacher any further?

36. But Jesus, not heeding the word spoken, saith unto the ruler of the synagogue, Fear not, only believe.

41. And taking the child by the hand, he saith unto her, Talitha cumi; which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, Arise.

42. And straightway the damsel rose up, and walked; for she was twelve years old. And they were amazed straightway with a great amazement.

Communication

The Founding of the Church.

Mr. Editor, Forum: By your gracious indulgence further space in your paper is asked.

As the material used in building the temple of Solomon was prepared before it was placed together, it is presumed that Bible students agree that the church or building of God erected, built or set up on the day of Pentacost as previously shown in like manner was constructed out of material prepared before hand by John the Baptist, Jesus and others. That as an organic structure before that time it had no existence.

After the death of Jesus and during the forty days which intervened between his resurrection and ascension, he was with his apostles, and explained to them specifically "the things concerning the Kingdom of God."

Following the ascension his followers for ten days were left a shattered company, with no bond of cohesion except through the influence of his teaching, and the memory of the Master in his injunctions to unity and love. They continued together, however, "the number of names together being about one hundred and twenty," awaiting his promise.

"When the day of Pentecost was fully come," the Spirit sent by the Son from the Father" rested upon each of them, combining them into an organic whole by an internal and spiritual bond of cohesion. Before, they were individual followers of Jesus, now, they constitute the mystical body, animated by the Spirit.

Jesus in his earthly ministry appeared, not in the beginning of the gospel age, but in the end of the Jewish. The offerings and service, divinely instituted, in the Temple called the House of God continued till upon the cross he said, "It is finished." Then it was "the veil (vail) of the temple was rent," "the middle wall of partition broken down," the old legal institution of Moses "nailed to the cross." The last sabbath Jesus slept in the tomb. The temple deserted, its veil rent, its foundations shaken, the ritual of service abolished, and as after death the judgment—the temple, city, nation waited for the day of vengeance.

But Jesus, raised, ascended, exalted, glorified, crowned, seated at the right-hand of God, all authority in heaven and on earth vested in him becomes the author of eternal salvation to all who obey him—a prince and a savior to grant repentance and remission of sins to such as receive him.

For such a savior approaching in his ascension the heaven of heavens, the attendant angels shout "Lift up your heads, O you gates, be lifted up, you everlasting doors, and the king of glory shall come in."

To the astonished inquiry from within, the responsive shout in triumphal strains acclaim, "The Lord, strong and mighty, He is the King of Glory."

It is such a Savior, inadequately portrayed, whose name is above every name, whose authority is supreme, and "in whom dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily," who stoops to offer to sinful man the church which he loved," which "he purchased with his own blood," and in which terminates all of divine revalation to man, the embodiment of infinite intelligence and almighty love, the benignant and gracious means provided by divine wisdom for man's present felicity and his ultimate bliss.

It has been attempted, in a feeble way, to prepare the mind for the suspended answer to the question, "Can a man be a Christian outside the Church?"

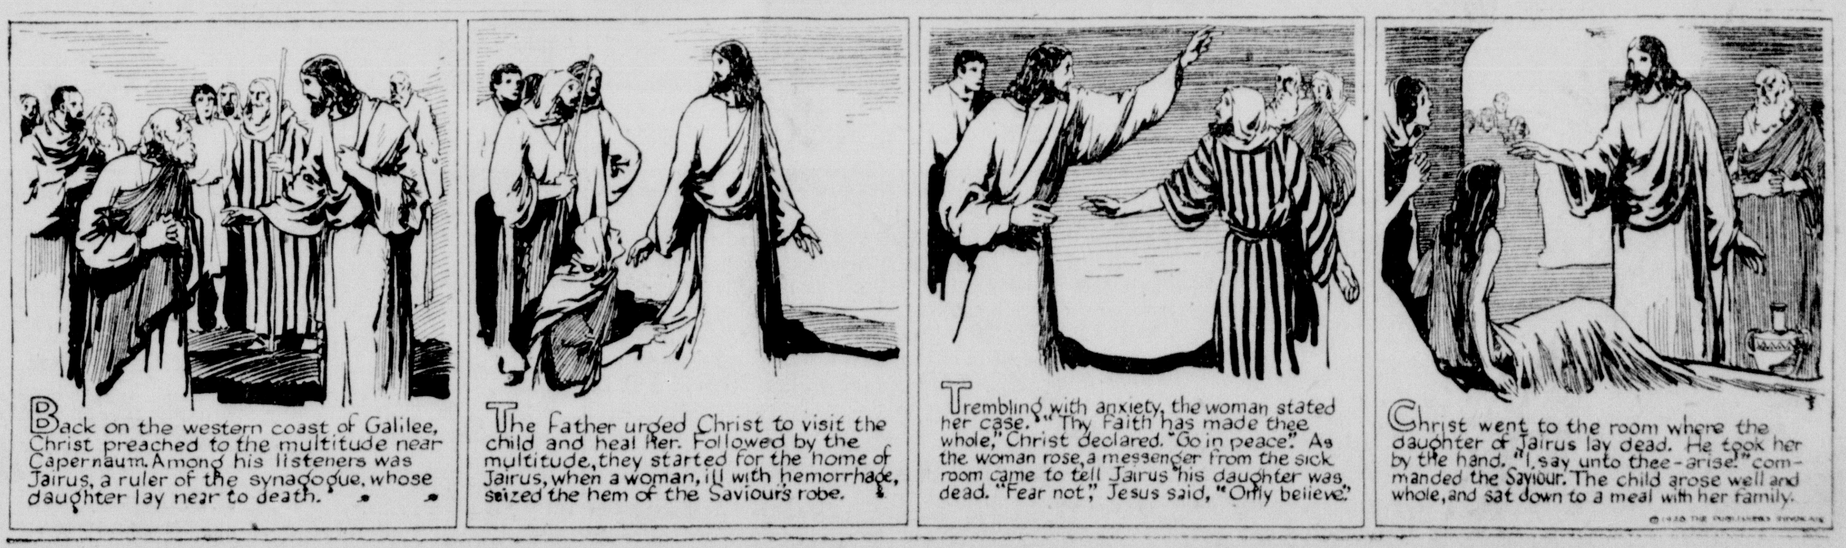
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON : : : : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

RAISING THE DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS



Back on the western coast of Galilee, Christ preached to the multitude near Capernaum. Among his listeners was Jairus, a ruler of the synagogue, whose daughter lay near to death.
The father urged Christ to visit the child and heal her. Followed by the multitude, they started for the home of Jairus, when a woman, ill with hemorrhage, seized the hem of the Saviour's robe.
Trembling with anxiety, the woman stated her case. "Thy faith has made thee whole," Christ declared. "Go in peace." As the woman rose, a messenger from the sick room came to tell Jairus his daughter was dead. "Fear not," Jesus said, "Only believe."
Christ went to the room where the daughter of Jairus lay dead. He took her by the hand. "I say unto thee - arise!" commanded the Saviour. The child arose well and whole, and sat down to a meal with her family.

THE STORY THUS FAR

The key to the closet door was always kept on the outside, Margaret Odell's maid told police the morning her mistress' strangled body was found in the apartment. But this day the key was on the inside. The "Canary" had gone out early in the evening with a man. The next morning when the maid came to work Margaret Odell was dead. A baffling mystery, Vance declares, a devilish one—"And, Markham, those finger-prints you found have nothing whatever to do with the murder."

CHAPTER VIII

Heath shot Vance a curious look. Then, after a moment's frowning contemplation of the knob, he waved his hand to the detective who had brought the maid in.

"Take her back to the reception-room, Snitkin, and get a detailed description from her of all the Odell jewelry. . . . And keep her outside! I'll want her again."

When Snitkin and the maid had gone out, Vance lay back lazily on the davenport, where he had sat during the interview, and sent a spiral of cigaret smoke toward the ceiling.

"Rather illuminatin', what?" he remarked. "The dusky demoiselle got us considerably forrader. Now we know that the closet key is on the wrong side of the door, and that our lady of joy went to the theater with one of her favorite lovers, who presumably brought her home shortly before she took her departure from this wicked world."

"You think that's helpful, do you?" Heath's tone was contemptuously triumphant. "Wait till you hear the crazy story the telephone operator's got to tell."

"All right, Sergeant," put in Markham, impatiently. "Suppose we get on with the ordeal."

"I'm going to suggest, Mr. Markham, that we question the janitor first. And I'll show you why." Heath went to the entrance door of the apartment, and opened it. "Look here for just a minute, sir."

He stepped out into the main hall, and pointed down the little passageway on the left. It was about ten feet in length, and ran between the Odell apartment and the blank rear wall of the reception-room. At the end of it was a solid oak door which gave on the court at the side of the house.

"That door," explained Heath, "is the only side or rear entrance to this building; and when that door is bolted nobody can get into the house except by the front entrance. You can't even get into the building through the other apartments, for every window on that floor is barred. I checked up on that point as soon as I got here."

He led the way back into the living-room.

"Now, after I'd looked over the situation this morning," he went on, "I figured that our man had entered through that side door at the end of the passageway and had slipped into this apartment without the night operator seeing him. So I tried the side door to see if it was open. But it was bolted on the inside—not locked, mind you, but bolted.

"And it wasn't a slip-bolt, either, that could have been jimmied or worked open from the outside, but a tough old-fashioned turn-bolt of solid brass. . . . And now I want you to hear what the janitor's got to say about it."

Markham nodded acquiescence, and Heath called an order to one of the officers in the hall. A moment later a stolid, middle-aged man, with sullen features and high cheek-bones, stood before us. His jaw was clamped tight, and he shifted his eyes from one to the other of us suspiciously.

Heath straightway assumed the role of inquisitor.

"What time do you leave here at night?" He had, for some reason, assumed a belligerent manner.

"Six o'clock— sometimes earlier, sometimes later." The man spoke in a surly monotone. He was obviously resentful at this unexpected intrusion upon his orderly routine.

"And what time do you get here in the morning?"

"Eight o'clock, regular."

"What time did you go home last night?"

"About six—maybe quarter past."

Heath paused and finally lighted the cigar on which he had been chewing at intervals during the past hour.

"Now, tell me about that side door," he went on, with undiminished aggressiveness. "You told me you lock it every night before you leave—is that right?"

"Ja—that's right." The man nodded his head affirmatively several times. "Only I don't lock it—I bolt it."

"All right, you bolt it, then. As Heath talked his cigar bobbed up and down between his lips: smoke and words came simultaneously from his mouth. "And last night you bolted it as usual about six o'clock?"

"Maybe a quarter past," the janitor amended, with Germanic precision.

"You're sure you bolted it last night?" The question was almost ferocious.

"Ja, ja. Sure, I am. I do it every night. I never miss."

The man's earnestness left no doubt that the door in question had indeed been bolted on the inside about six o'clock of the previous evening. Heath, however, belabored the point for several minutes, only to be reassured doggedly that the door had been bolted. At last the janitor was dismissed.

"Really, y' know, Sergeant," remarked Vance with an amused smile, "that honest Rheinländer bolted the door."

"Sure, he did," sputtered Heath "and I found it still bolted this morning at quarter of eight. That's just what messes things up so nice and pretty. If that door was bolted from six o'clock last evening until eight o'clock this morning, I'd appreciate having some one drive up in a hearse and tell me how the Canary's little playmate got in here last night. And I'd also like to know how he got out."

"Why not through the main entrance?" asked Markham. "It seems the only logical way left, according to your own findings."

"That's how I had it figured out, sir," returned Heath. "But wait till you hear what the phone operator has to say."

"And the phone operator's post," mused Vance, "is in the main hall half-way between the front door and this apartment. Therefore, the gentleman who caused all the disturbance hereabouts last night would have had to pass within a few feet of the operator both on arriving and departing—eh, what?"

"That's it!" snapped Heath. "And, according to the operator, no such person came or went."

Markham seemed to have absorbed some of Heath's irritability.

"Get the fellow in here, and let me question him," he ordered. Heath obeyed with a kind of malicious alacrity.

(Tuesday, September 11, 11 a. m.)

Jessup made a good impression from the moment he entered the room. He was a serious, determined-looking man in his early thirties, rugged and well built; and there was a squareness to his shoulders that carried a suggestion of military training. He walked with a decided limp—his right foot dragged perceptibly—and I noted that his left arm had been stiffened into a permanent arc, as if by an unreduced fracture of the elbow.

He was quiet and reserved, and his eyes were steady and intelligent. Markham at once motioned him to a wicker chair beside the closet door, but he declined it, and stood before the district attorney in a soldierly attitude of respectful attention. Markham opened the interrogation with several personal questions. It transpired that Jessup had been a sergeant in the World War,* had twice been seriously wounded, and had been invalided home shortly before the Armistice. He had held his present post of telephone operator for over a year.

"Now, Jessup," continued Markham, "there are things connected with last night's tragedy that you can tell us."

"Yes, sir." There was no doubt that this ex-soldier would tell us accurately anything he knew, and also that, if he had any doubt as to the correctness of his information, he would frankly say so. He possessed all the quality of a careful and well-trained witness.

"First of all, what time did you come on duty last night?"

"At ten o'clock, sir." There was no qualification to this blunt statement; one felt that Jessup would arrive punctually at whatever hour he was due. "It was my short shift. The day man and myself alternate in long and short shifts."

"And did you see Miss Odell come in last night after the theater?"

"Yes, sir. Every one who comes in has to pass the switchboard."

"What time did she arrive?"

"It couldn't have been more than a few minutes after eleven."

"Was she alone?"

"No, sir. There was a gentleman with her."

"Do you know who he was?"

"I don't know his name, sir. But I have seen him several times before when he has called on Miss Odell."

"You could describe him, I suppose."

"Yes, sir. He's tall and clean-shaven except for a very short gray mustache, and is about forty-five, I should say. He looks—if you understand me, sir—like a man of wealth and position."

Markham nodded. "And now, tell me; did he accompany Miss Odell into her apartment, or did he go immediately away?"

Mrs. C. R. Harman of Pickering Is Better

Improving After Paralytic Stroke.—Play at Good Hope Church.—Books Given School.

(By O. G. Null)

PICKERING—Mrs. C. R. Harman, who suffered a light stroke of paralysis last week, is reported to be slightly improved though she is still confined to her bed. Her many friends throughout the county are hoping for her complete recovery.

William Pfeiffer of Blue Rapids, Kan., was visiting former neighbors and friends here Tuesday. Mr. Pfeiffer conducted a barber shop here some twenty-five years ago and left this place for Kansas about twenty years ago.

Donald Johnson, Donald Hanna, Marie McGinness and Mildred Hogue, members of the junior class of the Pickering High School, are assisting the members of the White Cloud Community Club in the presentation of the play, "Yimmy Yohnson's Yob," at the Good Hope church this week.

The junior class gave the play here some time ago under the direction of Mrs. Street, the class sponsor, who is also assisting in directing the play at Good Hope.

About three weeks ago when Mrs. H. A. Doughty was disposing of her household effects here in order to move to Maryville, she presented the High School about seventy-five volumes from the library of her deceased husband, the late Rev. H. A. Doughty.

The books are mostly historical, and in the group are two complete history sets. Mrs. Doughty also presented a number of books to the grade rooms of the school. This contribution is a splendid addition to the school library and is greatly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Null and granddaughter, Mary Katherine Null, and Mrs. S. E. Jones and children, Louise and Howard, drove to St. Joseph Wednesday, where Mr. Null attended the semi-annual meeting of the Rural Letter Carriers Association, of which he is secretary-treasurer, and the remainder of the party visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ellis. Mrs. Ellis is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Null and a sister of Mrs. Jones. Other guests at the Ellis home that day were Mr. and Mrs. James Buchanan and daughter, Doris Jane, of Falls City, Neb. Mrs. Buchanan is also a sister of Mrs. Ellis.

Donovan Ingels, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ingels, quit school Thursday in order to go to Tulsa, Okla., with Floyd Fakes of Maryville who is leaving for that place this week.

The Wray Hdw. Co., is installing a heating plant in the Mozingo Valley school house this week. The heater is a heavy stove, surrounded by a metal jacket or casing which will distribute the heat throughout the room, much as a furnace would do.

Needed the Milk, Too.

Mexico, Mo., Feb. 24.—In the recent city primary election here the Rev. F. M. Shoust, for 44 years a Baptist minister, was defeated in the race for mayor by J. H. Lane, running for re-election. Following his defeat the Reverend Mr. Shoust published a "card of thanks" in a local paper expressing his appreciation for the "cream of Mexico's vote."

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark
By SHIRLEY BLAKE

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds — Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. Riessinger, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear and offer to grant your heart's desire what would you choose? Wealth? Happiness?

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

Three Families Are Moving From Harmony

Alsups, King and Andersons Hold Closing Out Sales—Several Drags in Operation in Vicinity.

HARMONY.—Church services were well attended Sunday. The men's Bible class had a good program arranged for the evening time. Remember next Sunday we need you and you need the church.

Mrs. Maud Hunt returned to her home Tuesday evening after a few days' stay at St. Francis Hospital where she had her teeth extracted.

Thursday evening of last week a company of neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson surprised them by gathering at their home as an expression of their esteem and good wishes. A good social time, supplemented by plenty of oysters, made a pleasant evening. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and family are soon to leave the community to seek a better clime in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Seiger of Jefferson City were week-end visitors at the Hubert Null home and also of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Casteel of Ravenwood.

The play given by the High School last Friday night was a decided success. All the characters seemed fitted for the role they played. At the close complimentary remarks for these young artists were heard on every hand. The play is being repeated this week.

There were three sales in quick succession during the past few days which indicate that this community is losing three good families, the Rev. J. T. Alsup, L. A. King, and John Anderson. The community can ill afford to lose these good substantial citizens. While we are prone to let these go, let us give a hearty welcome to those who are coming to take their places.

Saturday night quite a number of friends of Orville Kelley met at his home to remind him that he was passing another milestone in his life. Those present report an enjoyable evening.

A goodly number of the Harmony people attended the play given by the Ravenwood alumni Tuesday night.

The Casteel Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. Ethel Anderson Wednesday, Feb. 15. Nine members were present. A demonstration of cuffs, collars, and trimmings was given. A discussion on correct lines in dress proved very interesting. During the social hour a light lunch was served.

Roads are improving because a number of drags have been in operation but there are some portions leading to the church that need attention badly.

More Than 31,660 Gallons Sent Out

Barnard Reports Cream Representing a Value of $28,600, Shipped During 1927.

(Barnard Bulletin)

Roy Cook, agent for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy at Barnard, made a report recently of the amount of cream shipped from Barnard during the year of 1927. The request was made by the committee in the interest of a Nodaway County creamery.

The records of the Burlington office show that there were shipped by express during the year of 1927, 2986 ten-gallon cans and 160 five-gallon cans or a total of 30,660 gallons of cream. In addition to this A. J. Price shipped by truck 100 ten-gallon cans of cream making a total of 31,660 gallons and representing a value of approximately $28,000.00.

More interest is being taken in the dairy products and the cream is commanding a good price throughout the entire year. Farmers find that a few good cows pay well on the farm.

Much talk is being heard concerning a Nodaway County creamery. Ravenwood has voted and sold stock for a creamery and it will be in operation this summer.

Lindbergh to Fly to Washington, Is Report

Aviator-Inventor Refuses to Discuss Plans Following Conference With Ford Engineers.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Feb. 24.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh surrounded his plans with utmost secrecy today, but was reported to be planning a flight to Washington, perhaps tomorrow.

Lindbergh and the backers of his Paris flight are guests of Major Thomas G. Lanphier, flight commander of the first pursuit group, United States Air Service. They conferred yesterday with Edsel Ford and aircraft engineers of the Ford Motor Company, about the improved airplane designed by Lindbergh and Lanphier.

It was understood today that the plane is not yet ready for a test flight, though engineers have been at work on it for some time.

The purpose of Lindbergh's projected flight to Washington was not known. He refused to discuss the trip, pleading that he wished to keep out of the public eye.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Advancing from an early dip on lower Liverpool cables, wheat finished ⅝ to ⅞c higher on the Chicago board of trade today. A sharp rally at Winnipeg caused the upturn. Heavy receipts weakened corn and the close was ¼ to ⅜c off; oats firmed on wheat's strength and finished unchanged to ¼c higher. Provisions closed higher.

Wheat opened a fraction lower on the bearish world situation and weakness at Liverpool. There was fair buying on the dip, however, and when Winnipeg prices started upward, all Chicago futures firmed. There was, however, no consequential change in the general situation during the morning. Most traders awaited developments and the session was quiet. Some export business in Manitoba was reported.

Receipts were 16 cars and the cash market held unchanged.

Receipts of 512 cars of corn gave that market a weak tone early in the session. Most traders are inclined to buy, however, and when wheat firmed the recovery in corn was easy. Cold weather over the belt is expected to increase the marketing movement and the cash market declined another ½c on that factor.

Despite low farm reserves and the visible supply only half last year's supply, oats continued dull. Oats followed the upturn in other grains slightly but there was small interest. Receipts 42 cars, cash oats unchanged.

BEARCATS WIN IN FINAL HALF

TRAILING 30-14, THEY STAGE BEWILDERING RALLY.

FINAL SCORE 40 TO 37

Defeat Puts Warrensburg Mules Definitely Out of Race.—Ungles High Scorer for Maryville.

Staging a remarkable comeback in the last half, the Bearcat basketball team of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College last night defeated the Central Teachers at Warrensburg, 40 to 37.

From reports brought back this morning by Maryville persons who witnessed the game, the Bearcats were bothered by the dimly lighted gymnasium and their passing game was bad in the first half, the Bearcats often passing directly to the Mule basketeers. The game was the Bearcats seventh victory in eleven conference starts and eliminates the Warrensburg Teachers from consideration in the Teachers College basketball race, as the Mules have only broken even in ten M. I. A. A. games.

All of the Bearcats played a creditable game last night but if any honors should be given to individual players they should be for the floor game and passing of Co-Captain Paul Burks.

Hedges and Ungles were high-point scorers for the Maryville Teachers, Hedges getting six field baskets for twelve points and Ungles chalking up 13 points by five field baskets and three free throws. Burks also found the loop with consistence, making ten points by four field baskets and two gift shots.

Kept on Fighting.

Warrensburg drew away to a substantial lead in the first few minutes of play, making ten points as the Bearcats were getting a lone field basket. This margin was more than maintained by the Mules throughout the first period, and they ended the half with a lead of 28 to 14. The Bearcats were missing many shots in this period. Hedges got only one field goal and Ungles also found the meshed hoop only once from the field.

But the Bearcats kept peppering away at the basket in the final half, despite the fact that the Mules got the first score, running their lead to 30 to 14. After so long a time the Bearcats began to find the basket. They pulled up to within eight points of the Mules, and with only three minutes to play the score stood Warrensburg 34, Maryville 26.

These last three minutes of play spelled defeat for Warrensburg. Coach Tad Reid's men boosted their score three points during this period but the Bearcats counted fourteen points in a bewildering attack.

Norman, substitute Warrensburg forward, was poison to the Bearcat defense. Taking the place of Garrison, Warrensburg high-scorer for the season, he sunk the oval seven times from the floor in the first half. Draper the other Mule forward, was the other high scorer for Warrensburg, making eleven points.

The Bearcats will return home today.

Supported by Fans.

Eight Maryville men drove to Warrensburg yesterday to witness the game and they lustily gave the Bearcat yells against the entire Warrensburg student body. They were Martin Lewis, jr., O. K. Bovard, Albert Kuehs, Ralph Marcell, George Herren, B. E. Condon, I. E. Tulloch and Randolph Holt.

Two more M. I. A. A. games will be played this week, Springfield playing at Cape Girardeau tonight and tomorrow to conclude the conference season for bith teams.

AT THE BASEBALL TRAINING CAMPS.

(By the United Press)

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 24.—After an ultimatium from President Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators, Sam Jones, veteran hurler, is expected to desert the ranks of the holdouts and accept the terms offered him.

Fred Marberry, pitcher, who was classed as a holdout, has accepted terms and wired President Griffith he will report Saturday.

Bradentown, Fla., Feb. 24.—With only two pitchers absent, the Boston Red Sox batterymen have buckled down to real training.

The two absent hurlers are Bryan (Slim) Harriss, who is ill and Charlie Ruffing, who is a holdout.

Winter Haven, Fla., Feb. 24.—The Philadalphia Phillies will begin batting practice next week, their new pilot, Burt Shotton, said today. In practices so far, Shotton has been stressing running to get the player's wind in shape.

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 24.—With 22 players in camp, the Philadelphia Athletics have started strenuous work. Sixteen pitchers, four catchers, a rookie short stop and an outfielder are here.

Sammy Hale, third baseman, is a holdout.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 24.—"Great" was Manager Jack Slattery's comment after he saw in action here the infield with which the Boston Braves may start the 1928 season.

The personnel of the inner works is Eddie Brown at first, Rogers Hornsby at second, Eddie Farrell at short and Doc Gautreau at third.

Paso Robles, Feb. 24.—Fred Russell, star hurler from the Wichita Falls Club of the Texas League, loomed today as one of the finds of the season.

Donie Bush, Manager of the Pirates, allowed Fussell, a southpaw to put some stuff on the ball, and he established himself as one of the leading candidates for a regular job on the Pittsburgh staff.

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 24.—Hampered by wind and cold weather, the New York Giants have been able to get in little practice since their arrival here.

Frank Hogan, now nicknamed "Shanty," catcher, is ill with a cold.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 24.—The Cleveland Indians were scheduled for their first workout of the training season here today, weather permitting.

Avon Park, Fla., Feb. 24.—Manager Bill McKechnie has posted a set of training for the St. Louis Cardinals. They specify:

All players must be ready for practice at 7:30 a. m.

No gambling.

Golf games only on off days.

Near-Beer as the strongest drink.

Independents Lose to the El Retinas

Defeated Bowlers May Protest.—Superior C's and Nutty Three Win Tuesday Night.

In the only match bowled last night on the G. M. C. alleys, the El Retinas won all threg games from the Independents. Hiley and Brennan of the El Retinas tied for high ten with 192 each and Hiley was high thirty, beating Brennan by one pin. The score:

EL RETINAS—
Brennan	192	191	170	553
Hiley	185	192	177	554
Gaskill	167	143	166	476
TOTAL				1583
INDEPENDENTS—
Stanfield	171	164	155	490
Lightfoot	172	133	136	441
Saunders	150	160	129	439
TOTAL				1370

Because Gaskill has bowled for two or three different teams during the tournament, this match will probably be protested. At the start of the tourney each team was to name three regular team members and one substitute.

Tonight the Independents and the Nutty Three bowl and the second match will be between the Nickel Plates and the Chevrolets.

Tuesday night the Superior C's helped their percentage by winning the first two games in a three game match against the Chevrolets. Sell of the Chevrolets was high ten with 199 and high thirty was 546. Fanning of the Superior C's was high thirty for his team with 545. The score:

The second match Tuesday night was between the Wilcox Club and the Nutty Three. Reed Begins to Show Strain of Campaign

Missouri Senator Wearied by Trip to Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 24.—Senator James A. Reed, swinging into his western tour in the interests of his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination, today showed signs of the strain of his extensive campaign.

Reed was to address the Denver Chamber of Commerce today. Last night he appeared before 6,000 persons at a Democratic mass meeting.

The eyes, voice and demeanor of the fiery Missourian betrayed visibly a weariness brought on by his trip through Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Reed continued his attack against the Republican administrations of Harding and Coolidge. He talked for an hour and a half, assailing the Teapot Dome scandal, war debt cancellation and the government's "economy" program.

"I am more interested in the success of principles and the establishment of honest government in the United States than in the fortunes of any man, including myself," Reed said.

After appealing to Democrats to patch up their minor misunderstandings, he continued.

"You Democrats have victory in your grasp in the coming presidential campaign if you pursue the right policies.

"An enormous percentage of Republicans and independent voters hold their noses every time the atmosphere blows from the city of Washington."

With that he launched into his often repeated diatribe against what he termed the "Republican saturnalia of corruption."

"This is not a situation of individual raseality, its roots run deep into the Republican organization," Reed thundered.

"Tthe festering wound on the body politic only indicates the disease put into the blood by the managers of the Republican party some of it fifty years ago."

Channeldrain Roofing

Leak Proof - Lightning Proof - Fire Proof - Trouble Proof

Channeldrain Roofing is a step forward in metal roofing design. It eliminates the leaks caused by capillary attraction—the tendency of water seeping over the lap joints and getting beneath the roof.

Channeldrain has a barrier to leaks—a vertical wall running the entire length of the lap—and no water gets by this wall. The channel formed by the patented design of Channeldrain roofing carries off the water before it can mount the ridge. This means that Channeldrain roofing goes farther than any other metal roofing in doing what roofing is intended to do—IT DRAINS OFF ALL THE WATER THAT FALLS ON THE ROOF, permitting the surface to dry quickly and prevents rust under the laps and around nail holes.
